Which car has the most cargo space?

While the 2022 Kia Carnival SX has the most cargo space, the 2021 Chrysler Pacifica Limited has underfloor storage. The trim level might affect car trunk volume, and some vehicles have other cargo spaces like underfloor bins. Do you often use your vehicle to transport groceries, school supplies, and work equipment?

What does cargo space mean in a car?

For SUVs and minivans, that means the total cargo area available when all but the front seats are folded down. That includes the second row for two-row SUVs, or the second and third row for three-row SUVs and minivans. For each vehicle we also include the cargo space when tall seats are in place and usable for passengers.

How much cargo space does a small sedan have?

While sedans aren't typically known for their cargo space, some models do offer surprisingly roomy trunks. The top two picks for small sedans with the most cargo volume are the Kia Forte and the Subaru Impreza, both of which offer over 15 cubic feet of trunk space.

Do small cars have less cargo space?

Smaller cars have theoretically less cargo space, though many automakers utilize a hatchback design for their entry models, yielding effective storage space paired with fuel efficient turbo powertrains and an impressive list of technology and safety features.

Should you buy a full-size SUV or a minivan?

If you need even more space than a midsize SUV can provide, a full-size SUV might be the way to go. The top two picks for this category are the Chevrolet Suburban and the Ford Expedition, which offer over 120 cubic feet of cargo space with the seats folded down. For those who need the ultimate in cargo space, a minivan is hard to beat.

Does a car have a cargo room?

Many consumers consider a vehicle's cargo room a key shopping consideration, whether it's for holding groceries, carting the kids to weekend activities, or taking a long road trip. But manufacturers' claims of abundant space don't always reflect real-world utility. Consumer Reports measures and evaluates cargo space differently than automakers.
